PROFILE SUMMARY

Currently doing an apprenticeship with Commonwealth Bank of Australia, I'm an Economics and Statistics undergraduate with hands-on experience in market research, and predictive modelling through academic projects and national-level case competitions. Adept at preparing visually engaging and insight-driven pitch decks and presentations that simulate real-world client deliverables. Skilled in Excel, regression analysis, and data interpretation to support strategic decision-making. Eager to apply analytical thinking and research skills in a fast-paced investment banking environment.

PROJECTS

1. Economic Assessment of Two-wheeler EVs in Indian States

Faculty-Led Research, Economics Department

- Extracted and compiled data from government and market sources to assess EV adoption, cost-benefit, and market penetration

2. Understanding the Millet Paradox: Demand-supply Gaps in India

Primary + Secondary Research

- Investigated why millets, despite high nutritional and climate value, represent only ₹10,000 crore vs. wheat's ₹1.5 lakh crore market
- Combined field interviews and data analysis to identify demand-supply bottlenecks, policy misalignments, and consumer perception issues
- Produced a policy-focused report with actionable insights to address structural gaps in millet adoption

3. Predictive Analytics on Second-hand Hyundai Car Prices

Tools: Excel, Regression Analysis, Data Cleaning

- Built a predictive model analyzing 2000+ used car listings to determine key pricing factors such as engine capacity and mileage
- Applied statistical tools like multiple regression and correlation analysis for price estimation
- Delivered a clean, automation-ready dataset and structured model framework for operational decision-making
