PROFILE

Iam a dedicated and hardworking student currently pursuing my Masters in Economics, with a strong academic foundation in both psychology and economics. I have developed a keen interest in understanding economics theories, policy framework and research areas.

Throughout my schooling, I have demonstrated my leadership skills as the class representative for several years and have been recognized participation in various debates, elocution and essay competitions. My ability to handle responsibility, collaborate with peers and communicate effectively has been a consistent asset in academic and extracurricular activities. I have honed my skills as a reliable and adaptable individual as well as a team player.

I'm eager to apply my knowledge of research, analytical and communication skills in a practical setting. With a solid foundation in basic excel, and other computer skills, I'm committed to developing my expertise further while contributing meaningfully to the society.
